

Choking Independent Voice Will Stain YOU In History's Eye

Now, you all should listen very carefully to every single word that is printed on each of these letters. When Trent Lott and the ACLU agree on something, that's significant, historic and eye-opening. Without a shadow of a doubt, you, yes you, the very person who may anecdotally read these words, will be associated with a 'turning point' in the death of democracy that will stain your very being. It has been well documented how thirsty the orgy of media mergers would be, instantaneously after June 2nd, a new Gold Rush allowed and created by the same corporate buddy system John McCain campaigned against with such resonance.

De-regulation is a joke and a disaster in everything it has touched and this will not only be similar, it will be more profound to the consciousness of our world than any of these greed-fueled deals thus far and 97% of Americans agree now.

Senator Jay Bulworth: "You think these Pigs are going to regulate themselves?"

So I am writing to you today to comment on Docket No. 02-277, The Biennial Review of the FCC's broadcast media ownership rules. In its goals to promote competition, diversity and localism in today's media market, I strongly believe that the FCC should retain all of the current media ownership rules now in question. These rules serve the public interest by limiting the market power of already huge companies in the broadcast industry.

I do not believe that the studies commissioned by the FCC accurately demonstrate the negative affects media deregulation and consolidation have had on media diversity. While there may be indeed be more sources of media than ever before, the spectrum of views presented have become more limited.

Sincerely,

Neal P.
